1. A large part of the machinery at the power station in Bialogard (Belgard, 70 miles northeast of Szczecin) was taken away by the Soviets. Three turbines, each of 3,000 kw are now working on the production of power. The transformed power of 15 kv and 40 kv is distributed to substations in the area.
2. The area supplied by the Bialogard power station lies within a line running through Slawno, Polanow, Bobolice, Polczyn Zdroj, Swidwin, Gryfice, and Trzebiatow (see attached sketch).
3. The Bialogard power station is switched into circuit together with the hydro-electric power stations at Rossnow and Heyka (2½ miles west of Rossnow) and the Szczecin power station.
4. The main substation at Koszalin receives power at 40 kv and transforms it into 3 kv for the town and 15 for distribution to the surrounding district.

Encls: 1 sketch of the Bialogard power station area.
